

SW/YPA and Pathway Planning

Each person will have their own SW/YPA

Your worker will be there to help and support you through decisions you make about your future.

They will work with you to write a 'pathway plan'. The plan will set out the help you need and who is responsible for providing that help (e.g. health, family, education, training, employment, housing, benefits and social issues).

Your needs will be assessed to inform your pathway plan by your SW/YPA when you reach 16

You will be fully involved in the process and your views and wishes will be listened to and included. Other people may be involved in the process with your consent.

Your assessment will look at:

- personal support;
- accommodation;
- education/training/employment;
- family/social relationships;
- independent skills/life skills; and
- health.

But remember that no changes can be made to your pathway plan without approval.

It is the role of your worker to monitor progress or difficulties that may arise. This may mean changes to the plan. You will be involved in reviewing the plan every six months to look at any changes that need to be made.

Your worker will keep in regular contact with you. This will depend on your needs. We are here to listen, support, advise and help you.
